

Maximizing Mentoring Relationships

Tuesday, May 19th, 1:00-3:00pm

Participants in this online workshop will gain insight into developing relationships for productive mentoring of undergraduate researchers. The focus will be on life science research, but the information may benefit mentors from all disciplines.

Format: Zoom, with Q&A with the speaker and prompts for follow-up exercises.

Who should attend: graduate students and postdoctoral scholars interested in mentoring undergraduate research. Faculty mentors welcome to attend.

Registration: required; see https://milgram\_nih\_mentoring.eventbrite.com

Questions? Contact Carole Hom, clhom@ucdavis.edu.

About the speaker: Sharon Milgram, Director of the NIH Office of Intramural Training & Education, is responsible for the centralized oversight of training and policies that govern NIH trainees and has a passion for working with trainees at all levels. Her expertise includes the development and delivery of career and professional skills for early career scientists interested in biomedical, behavioral, and social science research. Dr. Milgram earned a Ph.D. in Anatomy and Cell Biology at Emory University and trained as a postdoctoral researcher at The Johns Hopkins University. Prior to her position at the NIH, she held a faculty appointment in the Department of Cell & Developmental Biology at the University of North Carolina, where she rose to Full Professor, served as the Director of the Interdisciplinary Biomedical Sciences graduate program, and founded the UNC Office of Postdoctoral Services.

Sponsored by the GradPathways Institute (Graduate Studies), the UC Davis HBCU Initiative programs (PABGAP, NUTGAP, and HBCU GAP), and PREP@UC Davis.