- From Jasquelin Pena to Everyone: 01:34 PM

Hi. I am Jackie Pena, I am an associate professor in CEE. Great to be here (connected by mobile right now).

- From Mariel Vazquez to Me: (Privately) 01:34 PM

Rosa, maybe muting those who are not talking? especially if there is background noise

- From Dawn Sumner (she) to Everyone: 02:18 PM

One slight correction to Phil's path for merits. My understanding is that the first merit after hiring an assistant professor or after a promotion skips the FPC if the recommendation is for a 1 step merit (at least in L&S MPS)

- From Julie Sze to Everyone: 02:22 PM

Is there a consequence for getting a NAPU?

It is complicated- but the transparency is welcome.

- From Theanne Griffith to Everyone: 02:28 PM

Thank you!

- From Philip H Kass to Everyone: 02:31 PM

Yes, Professor Sumner is correct - the FPC is bypassed for the first merit after hire or promotion!

There is no consequential action for a NAPU. Two successive NAPUs can lead to a dismissal action.

- From Julie Sze to Everyone: 02:33 PM

Thank you!

- From Jasquelin Pena to Me: (Privately) 02:45 PM

Hi Rosa-- I am going to log off now. Thank you. I will see you all tomorrow and catch the recording another time.

- From Kimberly Nettles-Barcelon (she/her) to Me: (Privately) 03:10 PM

Rosa can I test my microphone with you?

- From Me to Kimberly Nettles-Barcelon (she/her): (Privately) 03:17 PM

Hi Kimberly You can call in with your phone 16699006833 Meeting ID 989 3478 1313

- From Benjamin David Weber to Everyone: 03:17 PM

I wonder if either of you might talk a little about how creative work and new media scholarship is evaluated for promotion?

- From Tiffani Johnson to Everyone: 03:18 PM

Dr. Kass there was some uncertainty about where to include invited lectures (ex grand rounds) does that go under teaching, expanding knowledge of your research, or service?

- From Julie Sze to Everyone: 03:23 PM

Also if your disciplinary associations have published guidelines (like American Historical Association, or MLA) that would be important to include (in response to Benjamin's question)

Tiffani, that is a good question- I am on the Faculty Personnel Committee, and I am unsure about where things go. the key is to ask.

Lisa- my invited lectures are not in abstracts- they have been placed under Publications- presentations. does that mean we are advised different things based on our college?

- From Lorena Oropeza to Everyone: 03:26 PM

Who serves on CAP was my question.

if you don't have a formal mentoring committee, it's important to find mentors, across campus, outside your dept, in your field, etc.

It is really a skill to take complex research and boil it down to some main points.

- From Lorena Oropeza to Everyone: 04:23 PM

You can also ask for a do-over! I did for a podcast where I flubbed the initial question, what is the book about?

- From Melissa Blouin to Everyone: 04:24 PM

- From Lorena Oropeza to Everyone: 04:25 PM

Thank you for this information! As faculty, we are balancing many things. As a result, I am thinking about hiring a student to support my social media presence. Do you think that is wise? If so, can I have them contact you for some training on navigating social media for research purposes?

- From Kimberly Nettles-Barcelon (she/her) to Everyone: 04:56 PM

Can faculty get access to website building platforms via the university?

- From Thomas O'Donnell to Everyone: 04:57 PM

- From Maciel M Hernandez to Everyone: 04:57 PM

I've received a couple requests from local news (newspapers or tv) to comment on a topic. Usually it requires a quick turnaround and sometimes there's no follow up (e.g., I prepped some points and then no call back). How often does this happen? I assume a lot. Any tips on how to navigate that?

- From Sallie Poggi (She/Her) to Everyone: 04:58 PM

@orly - you can absolutely have them contact me!

- From Kimberly Nettles-Barcelon (she/her) to Everyone: 04:58 PM
